DIGITAL AND NEWSPAPER

Colleges & Institutes

Supporting learners, industry and communities across Canada

INTEGRATED CONTENT FEATURES: Turnkey solutions in which participating advertisers can be mentioned or quoted in at least one story. The PDF overviews are intended to be a thematic starting point. Topics highlighted will be revisited and updated during the production stage to align with the current situation

Colleges and institutes play a central role in connecting education with the needs of employers, industries and communities. As technology, demographics and labour-market demands continue to evolve, these institutions are expanding flexible learning pathways, strengthening applied research and helping Canadians build the skills needed for a changing economy. This special feature will explore how colleges and institutes are supporting learners, driving innovation and contributing to regional growth across the country.

Proposed topic highlights:

Skills for a changing economy — How colleges and institutes are preparing learners for evolving careers in technology, healthcare, skilled trades and other high-demand sectors.

AI and digital learning — How institutions are integrating artificial intelligence, digital tools and new teaching models into programs and workforce training.

Applied research and industry partnerships — How collaboration with employers and communities is turning ideas into practical solutions and supporting business growth.

Flexible pathways and lifelong learning — The role of microcredentials, upskilling and accessible programs in helping Canadians adapt throughout their careers.

Indigenous education and partnerships — How institutions are advancing reconciliation, Indigenous learner success and community-led education.

Regional impact — How colleges and institutes are supporting local employers, workforce development and economic resilience in communities across Canada.
